David Beadle, a policeman formerly attached to the West Thirty-seventh Street Station, who was last week convicted of bribery, was to-day sentenced by Judge Newburger, in General Sessions, to two years' imprisonment in State prison.

Beadle was a "plain clothes" man attached to the station. He was convicted of taking a bribe of $20 from a woman named Jessie Clarke, of 228 West Thirty-seventh street, on Sept. 17. On that day he and his partner, rolman Monroe Rosenfeld, went to the woman's house. They made certain charges to the police court that he would with against her, and Rosenfeld left for a few moments.

The Judge's Pity.

In passing sentence Judge Newburger said that he agreed with counsel that it was a very sad case, and that Beadle had already been severely punished. But the jury had convicted him, very properly, of the offense charged, and he properly, of the offense charged, and he must mete out some punishment in accordance with the law.

After sentence had been pronounced Edward Hawkes, a lawyer, arose and asked that the papers in the case be withheld until Monday, as the case was to be appealed to the Supreme Court. Judge Newburger granted the request, and Beadle will therefore not go to Sing Sing until Monday at all events.

Skull Fractured by a Fall.

An unidentified man, about thirty years old, fell on the sidewalk at Twenty-fifth street and Ninth avenue, fracturing his skull. He was removed to the New York Hospital.
